Celebrating Masters of Ceramic Craft

I make simple designs to brighten your everyday life. Timeless pottery that will follow you along for generations. I have always been a big fan of colorful neighborhoods, like the ones in Buenos Aires or in Sweden. I wanted to bring a smile to people's faces when they look at the pots, bringing the feeling of joyfulness. This is my biggest collection and by far the most popular. It is made so that everyone can find something that appeals to them.

I lived in Quebec until I finished my degree in geography in 2006. I had enough of school so I went on a trip around the globe. I had the chance to visit South America, Australia, New Zealand, South East Asia, India and Nepal. After a couple of years away from my home country I felt like I needed to reconnect with my family and found myself back in Canada. I came out west once again for work and decided to spend the winter in Revelstoke. After 12 years of being here, I still can not believe how lucky I am. I get to work planting trees in BC, and make pots in between planting seasons. I am slowly transitioning to a full-time potter right now but planting trees has helped me balance my urge of moving and being outside with my creative side.
