Celebrating Masters of Ceramic Craft

Roxanne help us appreciate the degree to which many customer are driven by their urge to create art and craft, even when it is very difficult.

She tells us that, at her core, she operates as a solitary artisan, constantly in a battle against the relentless surge of expenses. In her quest to sustain her art, she often finds herself teetering on the brink of exhaustion, balancing the demands of production with the needs of her family. Despite her best efforts, she can't help but feel like she falls short in her roles as a wife and mother, her attention often diverted by the ceaseless demands of her craft and the deep-seated passion and unwavering commitment she has for it.

Roxanne pleads: "And if you find yourself at a crossroads, facing the ballot box: Please vote conservative in the next election."
